HISTORY

Our roots might go back 150 years but the firm is noted for being in the vanguard of modernisation of the legal profession, being one of the first to adopt computerisation and regularly having partner visits to the USA to keep abreast of legal practice development. We aim to provide our clients with excellent legal services that help them achieve their full potential.

Stamp Jackson & Procter's ethos.

The East Riding of Yorkshire and Hull are historically prosperous areas in farming, manufacturing, and shipping with strong links to Europe and around the world. Our firm has served this community and business leaders in many areas of legal work from our original offices on Parliament Street. The legacy of our shared history demonstrates our commitment to providing long term legal solutions that focus on your best interests.

Much of the success of recent years is attributable to the recruitment of experienced non-legal professionals in key areas such as financial management, marketing management, information technology and human resources. This ensures our legal teams can concentrate on delivering the legal advice tailored to our clients needs.

We have developed our management disciplines through independently assessed quality standards, such as legal aid franchises. The firm became one of the first in the country to achieve Investors In People accreditation. IIP has been succeeded by the broader business quality standard ISO9001:2000/LQS that covers the quality standards across the whole firm. Our nationally recognised experts lead departments and teams so our clients can benefit from the most up-to-date legal services.

Stamp Jackson & Procter will continue to develop its services through innovations that focus on delivering the right legal solution for each client's needs. Changes to legal services in 2008 will bring increased choice for those seeking expert advice. Our aim is to work in partnership with you to provide the legal solutions required for a lasting and secure future.
